PRESS RELEASE

Gone Rogue Productions A Number by Caryl Churchill

What happens in a world where humans can be cloned?

Bernard's belief that he is an only child is shattered by the news that he has a number of cloned siblings sharing his exact DNA. When the balance of science and ethics become unsettled, the repercussions of this fall harshly on a father and his son as the vast differences among the genetically identical Bernards shake up the drama.

Written by Caryl Churchill, described as one of the most critically acclaimed playwrights in the English-speaking world by the New York Times, A Number addresses the potential consequences and pitfalls of artificial human creation. Gone Rogue's typically powerful approach in this two-man play provides an intense exploration of the true definitions of human individuality.

Gone Rogue return for the fifth successive year following their recent smash-hits Dogfight and Tape. Covering musicals, theatre and comedy, the company was founded for the 2012 Edinburgh Fringe and is presenting five shows at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe this year, including Ordinary Days and A Number, for a total of 15 since their foundation.
