PRESS RELEASE

Sheepish Productions Communicate by J J Fletcher

Writer explores love and loss in Edinburgh Fringe premiere

James is suffocating in the past, Heather is focusing on the nursery. With a baby on the way, can they move on? An uplifting story of one couple's journey through bereavement, love, superheroes and enforced pen maintenance. A new play by two times Scripted finalist and award nominated playwright Jeremy Fletcher.

The play was inspired by Jeremy's own experience of bereavement, losing both of his parents to cancer at a young age, and how starting a family of his own helped him to come to terms with his loss and move forward.

This will be Sheepish Productions' third outing at the Edinburgh Fringe. Their first play, Shadow On Their Wall, received a Best New Writing Nomination and four-star reviews from FringeGuru and York Mix Mag. Their second play, a black comedy called The Last Motel, appeared at the 2014 Edinburgh Fringe and received four-star reviews from Edfringe Review.

The company also perform The Life and Crimes of Reverend Racoon at C venues at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe 2016.
